Junior Data Engineer

Description

LemFi (YC S21) is building the neo-bank for the African diaspora in North America & Europe & the UK. We provide our users with a multi-currency account that allows them to hold, send, and receive money from Africa in any currency for their business and personal banking needs.

Who you are:

You are a candidate who would thrive in a fintech startup environment like ours, where we readily accept individuals with a humble, yet uplifting attitude alongside a diligent sense of work ethic. The teams here at Lemonade Finance are passionate about their work and fields of expertise, but also lend hands on cross-functional responsibilities to ensure the success of the company and the satisfaction of our clientele.

Job Summary:

As a crucial member of our growing Data Team, you will work closely with our lead data engineer to build and enhance internal data processes. You'll be instrumental in supporting operational analytics needs. You will also be integrating with numerous provider platforms, and standardizing data ingestion and processing across various departments for key business processes.
