

Data Analyst

Description

We are a young company – founded in early 2020 – and we are growing fast, expecting to reach 40 employees in mid-2024.

Our mission – which has resonated strongly with our diverse and exciting client base – is to build the most innovative and profitable performance marketing campaigns in the world; utilising bespoke & custom-built technology where it can add value.

We are dedicated to creating a technology-centric company where you will be empowered to use your skills to solve difficult problems with innovative and elegant solutions.

And we can prove it! We have recently received a Great Place to Work award, with a 95% happiness score, and have won several industry awards across the years in many categories.

Responsibilities

Joining as a Data Analyst, you will report directly to the Analytics Manager and work across both internal and external projects.

- Develop your Data & Analytics skills in a fast-paced environment that fosters development and high standards.
- Own client performance metrics by designing and building reports, defining KPIs, guiding targets and evaluating experiments.
- Derive valuable insights from large amounts of complex data, communicate these effectively to inform, influence and support our Paid Search strategy for clients.
- Foster great relationships with stakeholders from across the company and our clients – including by participating in calls, replying messages and by taking part in presentations and pitches.

Qualifications

Requirements

- Have a minimum of 3 years of commercial experience in an Analytics or Data Science role, ideally with a focus on Performance Marketing.
- Excellent attention to detail and value high standards.
- Proven working knowledge in data visualisation tools (e.g. Tableau, Looker) and working with spreadsheets (e.g. Excel, Google Sheets).
- Proficiency in SQL is essential, experience with dbt or Python is a plus.
- Enjoying work across a varied range of both in-house and client-focussed projects.
- Ambitious self-starter with a drive to learn and progress your career.
